

CSC 109: Introduction to Programming in Python

This course assumes students have no prior programming experience and then introduces them to the Python programming language. Topics include basic programming concepts, problem-solving methods, algorithm development, program design and learning the use of packages/ libraries useful for data processing tasks.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites: MTH 101