

MSL 301: Training Management and the Warfighting Functions

This is an academically challenging course where students will study, practice, and apply the fundamentals of Training Management and how the Army operates through the Warfighting functions. At the conclusion of this course, students will be capable of planning, preparing, and executing training for a squad conducting small unit tactics. Includes a lab per week using peer facilitation overseen by MSL IVs, supervised by ROTC Cadre.

Credits: 4

Prerequisites: MSL 101, MSL 102, MSL 201, and MSL 202